TO THE TEACHERS.

We have another great emergency to meet. The men from 18 to 45 have just registered. Soon thousands of these will be called to the colors. Many thousands of these in Kentucky are unable to read and write. This makes the emergency as great as when 20,000 young men of Kentucky registered by mark last year as the percentage of illiteracy is greater among the older class than the young.

Please make a close canvass immediately for these men and get them into your moonlight schools.

This is the most patriotic thing you can do.

We can send these men to camp with their heads up and with courage in their hearts if they are able to write back home, read their own letters, write their own names on the army roll, to read their orders, to study their manual, to read their Bible and do many other things required of all soldiers.

Let us not allow one man to go from this county into his country's service without being able to read and write.

The time is short, the need is great. Let us meet this emergency as our countrymen have met the call—with dispatch and courage.

MATILDA WALLACE, Literacy Agent.
